1 Packing List Items

Item	Quantity	Notes about Item
aqua tabs	12	Follow directions on packaging.
backpack	1	Backpacks are rated in Litres, for the volume of gear they hold.
bailing bucket	1
biodegradeable camp soap	1	Camp soap is only biodegradeable on land. Do not use directly in a body of water. Read the label.
boots	1	High-cut, lots of toe room.
bowls, plates, utensils	1	Small plastic utensils are more appropriate for hiking than metal ones.
bug spray	1	Higher the deet content, the more effective it is. Warning: bugspray is ineffective against the rodent-size mosquitoes of the French River.
coleman stove	1	Some stoves have flaps to prevent wind from redirecting the flame.
compass	1
deck compass	1
dry-fit shirt	2
dry-fit shorts	2
emergency warmth blanket and kit	1	Warmth blanket (made of foil), flares, whistle.
extra socks	2
first aid kit	1	Waterproof band-aids, disinfectant, polysporin, scissors.
flashlight	2	A waterproof flashlight is a good idea.
floating rope 50ft	1
food barrel	1
garbage bags (make sure they are resealable)	10	Resealable bags are a good idea. Bring many garbage bags because you end up using them for other purposes, like waterproofing things.
general purpose knife	1
hiking pants	1	Pants while hiking prevents ticks from biting you and giving you Lyme Disease
kayak	1
kayak paddle	1

kayak radar reflector	1
kayak repair kit (adhesive, plastic patches, marine epoxy)	1
kayaking map	1
life jacket or PFD	1
lighter	2	Make sure it is refilled before a trip. "Windproof" lighters (aka. torch lighters) have a blue jet flame that burns hotter than red
map	1
marine radio	1
marine radio frequency channels chart	1
passive sound-signalling device. ex. whistle	1
pillow	1
polarizing sun glasses	1	Polarized lenses cut down on glare, so you can see fish underwater better.
pots and pans	1
rain jacket and pants	1
rope	2	Use two different rope materials, one slippery to the touch, the other one rough. This helps you make different kinds of knots.
saw or hatchet	1
sleeping bag	1
sleeping pad	1	Inflatable pads compensate for uneven terrain better than foam pads, and are more compact.
sunscreen	1	Higher SPF is more protection, but is it also more cancer?
tarp	1	Bring bungee cords and make sure the tarp does not touch any part of the tent because in the morning condensation forms and may leak into the tent. Useful Knots: bowline tent	1	Useful knots: bowline (connect the top of the tent to a tree), alpine loop (shorten a rope), blood loop (adding extra loops to the line for hanging things from a carabiner)
tidal and wave charts	1
toiletries (tooth paste, tooth brush, floss, nail clippers, toilet paper)	1	Tooth brush, tooth paste, floss, nail clippers (you may chip it during a fall)
tylenol	10
water bottle	1	Choose a hard-shell water bottle: it can be used for different purposes, including a container for something fragile.
water shoes	1
